

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A portable device for assessing the degree of alignment between antenna and a satellite. In one embodiment, the device includes a portable housing that includes components for producing an audio and/or visual indication of the antenna's alignment with the satellite. The device may be self-contained and provide power to the antenna's frequency converter during the alignment process.